Excerpt: . . . property; was worth more than 500; th: i appellee made due proof of loss; that after proof of loss appellant wrote appellee a lengthy letter, declining to pay the loss, and repudiating liability, for the reason, among others, that when said loss occurred, and for some time previous thereto, the property had been vacant. Under these facts and in order to clearly understand the contentions in the argument it will become necessary to quote from certain parts of the application for insurance and the policy issued thereon. The following provisions are contained in the application which forms a part of the contract of insurance: Application of Charles G. Boyer for insurance against loss or damage by tire according to the specifications below, on one and one-half story, shingle roof, frame building while occupied by tenant as a dwelling. The policy issued upon this application...
