

Hurting Hope: What Parents Feel When Their Children Suffer (Paperback)

By Charles Hewlett, Joanne Hewlett

Piquant Editions, United Kingdom, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 198 x 129 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Sometimes being a father isn't what it was meant to be. It's hard to describe the very moment when you first comprehend that something significant is wrong with your child—that they have a major illness or disability, or that they are going to die. In that moment, you realize there has not been a mistake, it is your child, and nothing can be done about it. It is only a second in time, but it needs so much longer to explain. In this book Charles and Joanne Hewlett share honestly about parenthood dominated by sickness, disability, suffering, death and grief. Their strong Christian faith gives them hope, but the pain and the misunderstanding and the struggle still has to be lived, one day at a time. This gritty book is essential reading for all carers, nurses, counsellors and others who support such families with disabled children. Charles and Joanne Hewlett live in Auckland, New Zealand. Charles is the Principal of Carey Baptist College, a tertiary institution training people for pastoral leadership within the church...

READ ONLINE

[9.23 MB]

Reviews

It is one of my personal favorite publications. Indeed, it actually performs, still an amazing and interesting literature. It has been printed in an exceptionally easy way which is merely soon after I finished reading this book where it really altered me, change the way I believe.

-- Neal Homenick IV

This composed pdf is great. It usually will not cost too much. I am very easily can get a pleasure of reading a composed book.

-- Luis Klein