I have seen it somewhere written that to a person whose age extends beyond the period of youth, a retrospect of his early connections and friendships cannot but suggest melancholy and mournful reflections. To clip from newspapers and magazines the following reports and sketches of what were at one time current events; to read, and then retouch with a loving hand some incident of an almost forgotten past, is to indulge in a retrospect of the brightest and best period of my life - the years passed in Halifax. These newspaper clippings, play bills, menu cards, yachting programmes, and cricket fixtures, lead me into a veritable dreamland of delight. Even in the incidents of a quiet and uneventful life may be found the material for a log book, the perusal of which, in after years, will delight not only the writer, but those of his friends who are familiar with the places, people, and incidents...
