The rebellion has been squelched, treason subjugated, an erring and misguided people have laid down their arms, vanquished sorely in the conflict, and peace has been proclaimed by the President of the United States. Rapid and varied have been the events which have convulsed the life of the Nation, and threatened its very existence during the past four years. It will be impossible in the course of this brief address to allude to the causes which brought about this unhappy state of affairs; alas, they are too deeply engraven upon the hearts of the...
